THE CONVENTION'S SECOND DAY.

Graphic Picture of the Proceedings at Chicago.

O THE EVENIN CONVENTION HALL, CHICAGO, June 20 .- The second day of the convention opened with oppressive heat in the hall. The delegates, as on yesterday, were slow to arrive, and at 12 o'clock not more than half of them were in their seats.

There was only a sprinkling of spectators in the galleries and private boxes. The great heat kept many away from the hall. Judge Robertson was one of the first of the New Yorkers to appear.

WM. MAHONE. ROSWELL G. HORR Virginia. Michigan.

Walker Blaine was again a closely observant spectator of the proceedings, occupying a seat in a private box with Miss Sherman.
Mr. Northrup's prayer was of the conventional sort, delivered in a piercing voice that compelled the big audience to pay some attention to it.

Delegates Platt and Miller came in together in the milds of the prayer.

in the midst of the prayer.

There was a long pause after the prayer and no one seemed to know exactly what and no one seemed to know exactly what to do.

Temporary Chairman Thurston broke the silence by asking what the pleasure of the convention was, and Delegate Hamill, of Colorado, started an energetic chorus of protests from all parts of the house by the motion that the convention adjourn until 6 o'clock this evening.

The convention would have none of this, and Delegate Harris, of North Carolina, amused the audience by a little speech in favor of going on wi'n the report of the Committee on Credentials, interspersed with regularly recurring Southern "sahs," which seemed very funny to Northern ears.

The determination of the convention to go ahead with regular business and not be transal into any Presidential discussion at Philadelphia. Wisconsin.

He is a medium-sized, round-bodied man, with full grayish beard, dark mustache and a very bald head.

He has no such voice as Thurston's, and before he had spoken the first sentence of his address there were shouts of "louder."

He made a happy hit by referring to the Oregon election, which moved an enthusiastic gentleman to propose three cheers.

THE SPEECH MR. ESTEE BEALLY MADE. The speech actually made by the Fermanent Chairman differs materially from the one which he wrote in advance and distributed to the news associations. It was as follows:

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION: I thank you in the name of the States and Territories of the Pa-cific coast, as from my own heart, for the distin-guished honor that you have seen fit to confer upon me. I appreciate to the fullest extent the grave reaponabilities devolving more me, and this below. a Republican Convention I shall ask in all this being a Republican Convention I shall ask in all things its charitable judgment and its candid and carnest is charitable judgment and its candid and earnest support

Gentlemen of the Convention, following so illustrious a gentleman as your temporory Chairman, I shall not attempt to detain you by a lengthened apeech. I only want to say to you that we live so far from the centre of the Republic over on the Pacific shore that I can't even guess who your nominee is going to be. (Laughter.) Of course you all know. (Laughter.) I say further to you, my friends and gentlemen of the convention, that while I am not solle to say exactly what your platform will be, yet the people of the country have echoed its sentiment, and the rattle of the skirmish line was heard only two weeks ago from Oregon. (Great appliance.) God willing, next November you will hear from Cleveland's Appomattox all over this great Republic. (Appliance.)

My friends and gentlemen of the convention, I again thank you for the very high honor you have conferred upon me, and impressing you, I hope and pray, with the belief that our duties are of the conferred upon me, and impressing you, I hope and pray, with the belief that our duties are of the greatest and most solemn character, and trusting from the depths of my soul that every act may be done to promote the best interests of our common country, to advance the great Republican party, I will call for the next order of business. [Applause.]

THE SPEECH MR. ESTEE DIDN'T MAKE. The following speech, somewhat extended. was prepared by Mr. Estee in advance and distributed and printed to-day all over the country. It bears little resemblance to what he really said.

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION: The adoption of a platform votcing the principles of the Republicans of the nation is still easier of solution, for the leading features of that platform, I may be permitted to suggest, have all been discussed and adopted by the people.

TALK OF PREE TRADE.

TALK OF FREE TRADE.

The Democrats are for free trade; the Republicans are for protection. The protection of American labor and American products against the competition of foreign labor and foreign products will form a conspicuous place in your platform.

From the first hour of Mr. Cleveland's administration till now his well-known free-trade principles, added to the repeated effort of a Democratic Congress to change the tariff laws, have been a perpetual menace to the industries of the country. New enterprises are thus discouraged and new lines of labor are not created.

During the three years of Democratic rule there has been built in the United States less tonnage of American shipping than during any other three years for forty years before, in 1857 we transported in American bottoms to foreign lands only 14 per cent. of all our exports.

ported in American bottoms to foreign lands only 14 per cent. of all our exports.

Indeed, so marked has been the effect of this Democratic policy upon the industries of the country that a general unrest among the laborers of the nation is everywhere noticed.

AGAIN THE BLOODY SHIRT. Nor do these end the list of Democratic wrongs, The Republicans of the country cannot but note the aimost universal practice in the Democratic States of the soid South to disregard the sacredness of the electoral franchise. It is monstrous to say that this practice can do no harm, or that in the end, if successfully pursued, it will not result in the destruction of the Republic. DISCUSSES THE PRESIDENT'S ACTS.

President Cleveland was elected as a great civil-ervice reformer, and yet he has removed more sublic officers for poutical reasons than any of his euccessors. As a constitutional lawyer, Mr. Cleveland tells

As a constitutional lawyer, Mr. Cleveland tells the people se is a strict constructionist, but yet he see has boldly disregarded the soul and spirit of the constitution which separates the executive, the legislative and judicial departments of the Government. He has vetoed more cills than all the other Presidents from Washington down.

He has thus taken from the people the power to make their own laws, and places in also own hands the duties of the Legislature and the responsibilities of an executive officer.

The cowardly and foreign policy of the Democratic Administration receives the univer al contempt of foreign people and humiliates our own. • Wait till November comes and we will near from Cleveland's Appoination. In 1861 the attack was upon the armies of the nation; in 1868 it is upon the industries of the country. On the one side now, as then, is found the same solid South, the same Northern "doughfaces," the same British infinences with the Cobden Club and its American membership as recruits.

HOW TO GET RID OF THE SURPLUS. True, we are told by the President that there is a surplus in the Treasury; but there would not be a surplus if our forts were protected with fortifications well-guaned, if our nay was reconstructed, if our riv-rs and harbors were improved, if needed public buildings were constructed and if the pension all a vetoed by the President had become laws. Whoover before heard of a man with a surplus of money on nand refuse to put a roof on his own | CHARLES GIBLIN'S TRIAL.

In conclusion, gentlemen of the convention, the issues presented to the people this year are not of men, but of principles. The whole nation is looking on with breathess interest to see what we do. May we so act that in all things we will have the approval of our own considence, the approval of the American people, and, above all, the approval of him who controls both men and nations.

ANOTHER GAVEL PRESENTED. The presentation of Chicago's gavel was followed by another scene over the presentation by the Illinois delegation of a gavel made from a desk in Gen. Grant's old tannery at Galena. Tremendous applause greeted this incident.

"Who is the gentleman?" said the Chairman, as a baid-headed man with a mustache got up and made a motion.

man, as a baid-headed man with a mustache got up and made a motion.

Quick as a shot and clear as a bell the answer came back: "Husted, of New York." And then there was great applause and laughter, the New York delegates leading, at the Baid Eagle's familiar scream.

Senator Hoar, of Massachuseits, is the most uncomfortable looking man in the whole furnace-like piace. His smooth, round face looks like a bail of fire, and he wipes it incessantly with a haudkerchief as big as Thurman's bandanna.

Mr. Depew were working for several hours this morning upon the speech in which the Senator will nominate Mr. Depew.

The long and utterly uninteresting discussion which arose was over an important point in the report of the Committee on Rules.

Senetar Hear of Massachusetts and Con-

Rules.

Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, and Congressman Bayne, of Pennsylvania, carried on most of the wordy war, while the temperature of the hall got hotter and hotter, and half-suffocated delegates were totally unable to comprehend what was going on.

The issue was over the power of alternates to vote in the absence of delegates, something dry as dust to most persons.

The convention fanued and struggled with amendments. recommittals, suggestions.

amendments, recommittals, suggestions, speeches, motions and objections until the whole matter seemed in a hopeless tangle and the delegates looked the picture of misery.

Senator Hoar went on piling up the words, and Delegates Johnson, of New York: Taft, ot South Carolina: Warner, of Missouri, and others helped him until it was a question others helped him until it was a question whether the mass of new motions would not mount higher than the climbing temperature.

Then Jimmy Husted arose and shed the balm of his eloquence over the perspiring, wilting, face-mopping delegates. There was a loud cheer when he got up and in a few words put a phase on the matter that eventually settled it.

BATTLE PLAG IN THE MICHIGAN QUARTERS, He showed that the amendments offered did not really alter the committee's report and, after a little more firing back and forth, the good sense of this grew apparent and the report was adopted.

THE MURDERER OF MADELINE GOELZ BROUGHT TO THE BAR.

Resume of the February Tracedy in Which He Cut a Dastardly Figure-Giblin's Baby Disturbed the Court-The Case Opened for the Prosecution by Assistan District-Attorney Bedford.

The circumstances of the murder of Mrs. Madeline Goelz make that tragedy, the secand act of which is now going on in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, one of the most emarkable in the history of crime. Nicholas Goelz and wife kept a bakery in half of the double basement store at 62 West Houston street, living in the rear of the store. Valentine Goelz, brother of Nicholas, kept a grocery in the other half, living with Madeline, his wife, in the rear of their store. On the evening of Feb. 15 last a young man entered the bakery. Nicholas and wife were taking their dinner, and Valentine was sleeping on a couch. Madeline waited on the customer. He selected two pies and offered a five-dollar bill in payment. The bill proved a clumsy counterfeit.

A scuffle for the possession of the bill ensued between Valentine Goelz and the customer, and Mrs. Goelz ran to the assistance of her husbend.

The customer draw a revolver and shot of her husband.

The customer drew a revolver and shot Mrs. Goelz in the abdomen and her husband in the right breast and in the jaw.

The shooter was arrested immediately and said he was Charles Giblin, living with his wife and baby at 424 West Fifty-fifth street, and that he was a wire-pulier and was out of work.

wite and baby at 424 West Fifty-fifth street, and that he was a wire-pulier and was out of work.

Mrs. Goelz died next day, but her nusband recovered. Mrs. Goelz made a dying statement identifying Giblin as her murderer.

A jury was sworn in by Justice Barrett today for the trial of Giblin.

Col. Fellows and ex-Judge Gunning S. Bedford appeared for the presecution, and Abram Suydam and Milo J. White were associated as counsel for Giblin.

Giblin is a cadaverous, hollow-eyed young man of twenty-three years, with a large, square head and a mop of black hair. He was cool and calculating, and acted as if he had only a business interest in the affair.

His wife, a comely little woman, sat in the rear of the room with a lively baby in her arms. The baby had blue eyes and light, curly hair, and danced up and down on its mother's lap, crowing the while, until the frowns of Justice Barrett were seen by an officer and the little disturber was removed.

Nicholas Goelz and his wife Maggie sat with Valentine in the rear of the court-room. Mr. Bedford addressed the jury, Giblin watching their faces meanwhile, with a scrutinizing gaze.

Valentine Goelz was the first witness watching their faces meanwhile, with a scrutinizing gaze.

Valentine Goelz was the first witness sgainst Giblin. He is an intelligent man of thirty yea s, and told the story of the tragedy which robbed him of his wife in a straightforward, unimpassioned manner.

Maggie Goelz, sister to Valentine, a roundfaced, plump little German girl of eighteen years, testified in broken English and corroborated Valentine.

This morning all of the witnesses who had been subpenned in excise cases were dismassed, and the inquisitors devoted themselves solely to the boodle business. Among the witnesses examined was City Printer Martin B. Brown, who was mentioned as the holder of the $25,000 which was alleged and required to be paid for the Harlem and Woodstock Railroad franchise.

Mr. Brown said that the first he had heard of the matter was at the St. Louis Convention. He was unable to give the Grand Jury any information.
Col. Theodore Hamilton, the County Decol. Theodore Hamilton, the County De-mocracy politician, was another witness, as was also Counsellor Charles C. Bigelow, who was there to corroborate ex-Judge James R. Angel in his statement that Anthony Mc-Owens told him that $25,000 would have to be paid the Aldermen for the Harlem and Woodstock franchise.

Mauenweder, Prussia, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Lyman to-day in extradition proceedings.

Vogel, who is a fine looking man of fortyfive years, is wanted by the German Government for embezzling 51,000 marks belonging to the public treasury.

He skipped his native town on June I and came over in the Saale. Telegrams were sent to the German Consul here asking that Vogel be arrested on landing, but it was not then known on what ship he had taken passage and he managed to clude the detectives.

After a great deal of labor and following up many false clues Deputy United States Marshal Bernhard discovered that Vogel had bought a ticket for Allentown, Pa. He went to that place and last night he found his man stopping with a handsome German woman at a hotel there. The woman arrived from Germany several weeks ago.

When the marshal told Vogel for what he was wanted he became greatly excited. He tore his hair, wrung his hands and cried piteovaly. When Vogel was searched there was found in one of his pockets a draft for 24,000 marks on Milton, Shaw & Co., of this city.

Vogel finally quieted down and said that he was wanted to go to the toilet room for a few minutes,

W. C. Anderson, President of the Standard Gaslight Company, presented a new application to the Fire Commissioners this morning their tanks in East One Hundred and Fifteenth street.

Mr. Anderson began his petition by mentioning the receipt of a notice from Inspector Seery to remove the naphtha from the works within two days. He asked that a permit be granted on the grounds that the Standard Oil Company had constructed the tanks at great expense and the refusal of the Commissioners put the company to great daily loss.

He concluded with the words: "We cannot see why the permit for storing our oil and naphtha should be longer delayed, and we therefore request that the same be granted."

The matter was referred to Commissioner
Croker, for further consideration.

Does It Mean Hewitt Again? Whitelaw Reid, of the Tribune, called upon Mayor Hewitt this afternoon and had a five minutes' conversation with him in his private office. It was also said that he showed the Mayor some despatches from Chicago. The Mayor said afterwards that the visit had no particular significance.

The incident, however, served to revive the

There's certainly something the matter with him—
Is it stomach, or liver, or spices.

We've guessed it—his liver is sluggish and bad,
His blood is disordered and foul.

"I suspected something," remarked Marshal Bernhard to day, when he was telling the story of the arrest, "and I followed Vogel. He no sooner reached the toilet-room than he pulled a black bottle from his pecket, pulled out the cork and attempted to swallow the contents. I took the bottle from him like a fiash, and when I searched him I found another bottle. Both contained arsenic. He intended to kill himself sure."
Vogal was considerably excited when brought before the Commissioner to-day. He said that he was willing to go back to Prussia without any trouble and be tried.

What the Ex-Alderman's Wife Wrote to a Lady Friend.

She Expects to Return and Reside Permanently in New York in a New Untown Home-A Possible Sensation Which May Yet Be Sprung from the District-Atterney's Office, Though Mr. Semple Said He Did Not Know of It.

Mrs. De Lacy, the wife of the exiled boodle Alderman now in Montreal, whose visit to New York last spring was the cause of a sonsational report to the effect that De Lacy was coming back to testify for the people in the trial of Thomas B. Kerr, has written a letter to a lady friend in this city which has revived that rumor. She returned to Montreal and her husband that she is to return to take up her residence permanently here. She says that on their return they will not occupy their Fifth street residence, but will

Had Mrs. De Lacy, during her visit here, made arrangements with the District-Attorney which promised immunity from prosecution for her husband?

Had that been her mission, the failure to convict Kerr might have made it easy of accomplishment, for District-Attorney Fellows, it is alleged, was ready to make almost any concession to secure evidence which would save him from defeat on a second trial.

Assistant District-Attorney Semple was interviewed with reference to the matter. He said that he had heard of no arrangement for De Lacey's return. He hoped, however, that he would, suggesting that it would be an easy matter to convict him.
